WHAT CAN YOU DO WITH THAT?

NAVIGATING CAREER PATHWAYS IN “USELESS”
MAJORS THROUGH SERVICE-LEARNING PARTNERSHIPS

Presenters: Dr. Cara Burnidge & Dr. Yasemin Sari, philosophy students & EMBARC

---

Thursday, November 29

7-8:30 p.m. | Scholar Space, Rod Library

Philosophy and the Study of Religion are often perceived as “useless” liberal arts majors, leaving students unprepared for careers after college. In response to these stereotypes, the Department of Philosophy & World Religions addresses these concerns through two critical service-learning seminars partnered with Ethnic Minorities of Burma Advocacy and Resource Center in Fall 2018. Professors Yasemin Sari and Cara Burnidge, and their students, discuss their experiences, and demonstrate how these majors offer students opportunities to develop leadership and career-ready skills through course work, intentional service, and reflection.

Sponsored by the Department of Sociology, Anthropology & Criminology, the College of Social & Behavioral Sciences, the Office of the President, and the Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning.
